The Times is informed that a mock trial was held in a justice of the peace court at Flat River recently, in which Gov. Small, of Illinois, was the prisoner at the bar. The Times is pleased to note that Editor T. P. Pigg, of the Ironton Register, has been appointed deputy Game Warden for his territory. We are pleased for the reason that Editor Pigg has always been an industrious party worker, whether or not his work has proven fruitful for that party. We believe he has been honest in his efforts, however wrong they may be. He has been sincere to the point of suffocating his paper, by reason of the insufferable amount of poisonous and senseless amount of "editorial" squibs which have choked his columns every week. Perhaps now, in his efforts to protect the game and fish, his Enterprise will also be permitted to inhale some of the pure air of that vicinity.

filled baskets of good things to eat, and the spread that was made was most tempting and enjoyable, though not more so than the rekindling of past pleasant associations among this large assemblage of kinsmen.
